The declining powers of old age may be wonderfully recuperated and sustained by the daily use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WHY IT IS POPULAR

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

Preparations for rebuilding the burned portions of the pulp mill are going on and had it been a pleasant day yesterday the carpenters would have begun the work of rebuilding the wood preparing room which was totally destroyed. The debris has nearly all been cleared away and Mr C. B. Brown has his crew all on hand to begin at the first opportunity. It is still an undecided question whether they will rebuild the water tower or not, as that suffered very heavily and it has been necessary to tear down a large amount of it. The dynamo, which will be put in as soon as there is need of it to take the place of the one destroyed, will this time be placed in a small annex to the fireproof boiler house and will probably be built of brick and iron. It is probable that the expert machinists, now at work to discover the loss of the machinery will finish to-day or to-morrow and ten days will see the new part roofed in.

The Bath Times says that there is a noted watch charm in that town worn by one Norris Card. It was at one time the property of Jesse James the famous outlaw. It is a miniature revolver, and was purchased from the Ford Brothers who killed James. It was sent east by a friend of Mr. Card's. On the barrel are five marks said to have been made by James, to keep account of the men he had shot in attempting to capture him. It is to be hoped that the possession of the [illegible] will not [illegible] Mr Card to conduct himself as its alleged former owner did.

Elephants at Home.

But the animal is naturally sagacious. I say this in spite of the fact that the opposite opinion is held by a few men who have had much experience with them.

[illegible]

A large tusker that had escaped from the commissariat stables and managed to evade capture wandered for some time at large in a forest in southern India, and was well known by the iron ring on his ankle, of which he could not get rid.

He would at times lie up near one of the forest roads and, as he had on two occasions killed cartmen passing along, traffic was seriously interfered with.

At length his depredations became so bad that the government offered a reward of 500 rupees to any one who would kill him. But he was not easily seen and for a long time no one could touch him.

He met his death at last ignominiously. He went down at night into a sugar cane field belonging to a man who cultivated a lonely patch of land on the edge of a great forest. While eating much and trampling more, he was seen by this man's little boy who ran in and told his father. [illegible]

An elephant that has escaped from captivity and retaken to its wild ways is generally very cunning and very dangerous to man, for whom he has lost his natural fear. Such a beast is not allowed to mix with the herds of wild elephants and has to wander alone. He is technically known in India as a "rogue," a name also given to single wild elephants that from some cause or other may have been expelled from a herd.

The Lessons of the Victory.

The splendid Republican triumph of Monday is more suggestive of exultation than of moralizing, and yet it would be a great mistake to lose sight of some of its obvious and significant lessons. Of these, one of the most conspicuous is furnished by the superb victory of Speaker Reed over the combined efforts of the Democratic party and the influences which the Republican [illegible]

[illegible]

... unseemly interference with the exercise of their political rights. Whether it be the attempt, however unsuccessful, to organize the entire machinery of the Federal Census in hostility to the Republican Congressman of one district, or to undermine another by packing a custom house with his enemies, the fair minded Republicans of Maine will have none of it. If County Conventions cannot be held without having their members subjected to catechism and threats concerning matters not involved in the pending election; and if legislative candidates are to be bush-whacked and defeated because they refuse to pledge themselves years in advance to somebody's political fortunes, the intelligent rank and file of the Republican party will have something to say about it that will not be misunderstood.

The defeat of the Republican candidate for Senator in Piscataquis County as a direct result of the defection of the member of the State Committee, is a conspicuous fruit of the system of rule or ruin, whereby one of the most respected citizens of this section was sacrificed at the polls in a strong Republican County. An examination of the returns will disclose other instances in which other objects than the success of Republican principles seem plainly to have controlled. In these and other respects the election is full of interest for all who have the welfare of the Republican party sincerely at heart and we feel that plain speaking in regard to them is the very best service we can render.

A Clean Sweep.

The entire Republican Senatorial and county ticket is undoubtedly elected in Penobscot county. Complete returns have not yet been received, but those now in warrant the statement that the Republicans have made a clean sweep. In the county the Democrats made their principal fight for Sheriff and County Commissioner. This morning we publish returns of the Sheriff vote from forty-six towns, which give Mr. Reed a majority of [illegible] over the Democratic candidate. Mr. Wood, the Republican candidate for County Commissioner, [illegible]

[illegible]

The Ream Vote.

[illegible] This remark is not complimentary to the Democratic stronghold in this city as it implies that the ward where the Democrats look for their principal support is largely made up of the saloon element. We venture the prediction that the Democrats of that ward will not relish the imputation of their party organ. As a matter of fact, however, Brown carried the ward by one hundred majority, thus showing by the peculiar argument made in the Commercial that he had the saloon interest behind him.

GRATIFYING SURPRISE.

(Boston Journal)

Maine has been heard from, and there is nothing in her voice which is calculated to carry anything but satisfaction to the hearts of loyal Republicans. Our news column contains the latest dispatches received up to the hour of going to press and supply interesting details of the result. At the time of writing, the plurality of Gov. Burleigh appears to be in excess of that given the Republican candidate for Governor at the corresponding election in 1886. Such a result as this, after a campaign of exceptional quiet save in the First District, is a gratifying surprise, for it had been expected that the total vote would drop considerably below the usual figures, and under these circumstances it is almost invariably the majority party which feels the effect of apathy most keenly.

But it is the result in the First District which will bring most satisfaction to Republicans and carry most dismay to the enemy. Speaker Reed's constituents have re-elected him by a majority with which the most audacious and unscrupulous Democrats will not deem it prudent to trifle. The most sanguine friends of Mr. Reed have hardly ventured to look for a larger by such a vote. It had not been seriously expected anywhere that his majority would reach the figure of a Presidential year, and it would not have [illegible] surprise if the desperate machinations of his enemies had reduced it to the figures of 1888. The result is a splendid personal triumph for Mr. Reed, as well as for the party whose cause he has so ably led in the House. He will go back to his post at Washington strengthened and encouraged by this demonstration of the enthusiastic support of his constituents and of his party at large. Incidentally the Democrats will learn what [illegible]

The Republican Plurality Still Increasing.

Returns from 33? Towns Make the Republican Plurality 18,226.

A Gain of 4,??1 over the Last Off Year.

President Harrison Congratulates Speaker Reed upon His Splendid Endorsement.

Republicans Elect their Entire Ticket in Penobscot County.

Sheriff Reed 650 Ahead in 46 Towns.

LEWISTON, Sept. 9. The Journal's returns from 33? towns are as follows: Burleigh, Republican, 57,??0; Thompson, Democrat, 39,?68; Clark, Prohibition, 2??. Republican plurality, 18,226. The same towns in 1886 gave 13,?95 plurality.

THE NEXT LEGISLATURE.

Estimate of its Complexion.

PORTLAND, Sept. 9. An estimate made by the Advertiser of the Maine Legislature is as follows: Senate—28 Republicans and 3 Democrats; House—117 Republicans and 3? Democrats.

FROM ROCKLAND.

Three Republicans Elected.

ROCKLAND, Sept. 9. Three Republican candidates were elected in Knox county, as follows: Register of Deeds, Frank B. Miller, Rockland; County Attorney, Washington R. Prescott, Rockland; County Commissioner, Henry J. Sleeper, Union. The returns from Vinalhaven increase the plurality of Register, Attorney and Commissioner. The Democrats elected the following: Senators, Hiram C. Mahan, Thomaston, Isaac W. Sherman, Camden; Sheriff, J. W. Gray, Vinalhaven; Treasurer, A. B. Clark; Representatives, A. F. Bird, U. L. Farrand.

FROM BELFAST.

Returns from Waldo County.

BELFAST, Sept. 9. Twenty-three towns in Waldo County, gives Burleigh 2,609; Thompson 2,040. All the towns but Troy give Burleigh 38 plurality. Thompson carries the county 35 to 30. Twenty-two towns give Baker 2,540; Milliken 2,249. The remaining towns will increase Baker's plurality to 400. W. H. Burr, Republican Senator, and T. Wadlin, Clerk, are the only Republican officials elected. The rest of the Democratic County ticket will average 80 plurality. The Prohibition vote is about 100. The Representatives are Henry E. Greeley, Swanville; J. W. Parker, Belfast; Marlboro Packard, Searsport; Page H. Kane, Palermo, Republicans; and H. E. Stone, Troy; J. J. Sewall, Monroe; Allen B. Miller, Lincolnville, Democrats.

FROM DOVER.

Entire Republican County Ticket Elected, with the Exception of Senator who is Sacrificed.

DOVER, Sept. 9. A. W. Chaplin, of Mexico, Democrat, is elected Senator by thirty-three majority. All three Representatives are Republicans. The entire Republican County ticket is elected by over 300 plurality.

FROM SKOWHEGAN.

Burleigh Has a Good Lead.

SKOWHEGAN, Sept. 9. Returns from all but six small plantations in Somerset county give Burleigh 1,9??; Thompson, 2,??; Clark, 60. Four Republican representatives are elected and two Democrats. One district is in doubt.

FROM NORWAY.

Burleigh and Dingley Have Large Majorities.

NORWAY, Sept. 9. Thirty-one towns give Burleigh 1??? majority and Dingley about 1???. The Republicans elect the Representatives ... and probably seven. For Republican Senators, 3? towns give Austin 13?? majority; [illegible] ... all Republicans.

President Harrison Congratulates the Maine Congressmen.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. The following telegram was received here this morning: ... Cresson, Pa., Sept. 9. Hon. T. B. Reed, Speaker of the House of Representatives: I very heartily congratulate you and your colleagues in Congress [illegible]

PENOBSCOT COUNTY.

A Clean Republican Sweep.

The Republicans seem to have made a clean sweep in Penobscot. The principal contest of the Democrats was made on the sheriff vote and the forty-six towns heard from give Reed 650 over Brown. These figures may be changed somewhat by complete returns but the margin cannot be wiped out by remaining towns and is likely to be increased.

Aldrich's Reciprocity Amendment Adopted.

And the Tariff Bill Ordered to a Third Reading.

House Democrats Demoralized by the News from Maine.

Senate.

Mr. Plumb offered an amendment to the Tariff bill for the appointment of a commission of five ... to be known as the Customs Commission, with a permanent office in Washington. Agreed to—yeas 31; nays, 2?. On this vote no party lines were observed.

The bill was then reported to the Senate and all amendments adopted in Committee of the Whole were agreed to in the Senate except those on which separate votes were demanded. The first was Mr. Plumb's amendment for the Customs Commission. The amendment was agreed to—yeas 3?; nays 2?.

[illegible]

The amendment was agreed to—yeas 3?, nays 2?.

The reciprocity amendment offered by Mr. Aldrich for the Finance Committee was agreed to—yeas 3?, nays 2?.

[illegible]

All reserved amendments having been disposed of the presiding officer announced that the bill was now before the Senate for amendment.

Mr. Plumb called for a separate vote on the committee amendment striking out of the bill the provision for a bounty of a dollar a pound on silk reeled from cocoons produced in the United States.

The amendment ... agreed to—yeas 30; nays 7 ([illegible]).

No other amendment was offered and the question was: Shall the bill be engrossed and ordered to a third reading. On that question the yeas and nays were taken and resulted—yeas, 3?; nays 2?—a party vote.

The bill was read a third time and the question was stated to be "Shall the bill pass?"

Mr. Aldrich thereupon moved an adjournment, but withdrew it to allow an executive session.

The Senate at 3.10 adjourned.

House.

Mr. Haugen, of Wisconsin, called up the Virginia election case of Langston against Venable.

Mr. Ferrell, of Virginia, raised the question of consideration.

The vote resulted—yeas 8?, nays 14; no quorum.

Mr. Williams, of Ohio, inquired whether the stampede on the other side was caused by the news from Maine. (Laughter.)

A call of the House was ordered. A bare quorum was disclosed on the call. The question recurred upon the question of consideration, pending which, Mr. Ferrall moved an adjournment.

The motion to adjourn was lost—yeas 40, nays 93.

On the question of consideration the quorum disappeared, the vote standing—yeas, 87; nays, 7.

Another call was ordered, no quorum appearing.

Mr. Haugen offered a resolution directing the Sergeant-at-Arms to summon absentees.

Mr. Breckinridge, of Kentucky, moved to lay Mr. Haugen's resolution on the table. Lost—yeas, 40; nays, 90.

Mr. Haugen said it was evident news from Maine had so demoralized his Democratic friends as to render them incapable of doing any business to-day. He moved that the House adjourn and the motion was agreed to.

For those interested in astronomy it can be said that the zodiacal light can be seen this month. Venus and Mercury are both at greatest elongation east this month on the 3d and 23d respectively. Mars and Jupiter are both evening stars this month. The former can readily be distinguished by its peculiar coloring in the southwest. The superior brilliancy of Jupiter makes it easily found in the south, but higher on the meridian than Mars. For all practical purposes Saturn is lost in the sun's rays.

Mr. and Mrs. Little left Saturday for Denver, Col., which will be their future home. Mr. Little is the grandson of Edward T. Little, who was one of Auburn's wealthiest and most public spirited citizens. Mr. Little graduated from Bowdoin, class of '87, and from Boston University school of law in 1890.

MAINE STATE BOARD OF TRADE. To-day the meeting of the Maine State Board of Trade will be held at Portland. It will be the second annual meeting and a large number is expected to be present. The majority of the State boards will be represented. The Bangor board will send several delegates who were elected not long ago. The meeting will be an important one, and will doubtless have considerable influence on Maine's future prosperity. The past sessions of this worthy organization have proved enjoyable and profitable to those in attendance and doubtless there will be a large and representative gathering of Maine business men at the forthcoming meeting. The members of the Portland Board of Trade are arranging to give their brethren from other parts of the State a cordial welcome on this occasion. It is understood that some important measures will come up at the meeting to be acted upon.

A PECULIAR SCHEME. An exchange reports the perpetration of a new swindle in one of the country towns. A number of weeks ago a woman of mature years and brilliant personality came to the town. She attracted universal attention by her appearance, and the situation was increased when the object of her visit was made known. She said she wanted to buy up the available farms in the place for the purpose of founding a colony. She dressed finely and wore a profusion of jewelry. One diamond she had, as large as a walnut, she claimed was worth $?0,000. The farmers bit eagerly at the bait of wealth thus displayed, and she hadn't been there long before she had bargained for a number of farms. While making her trades she made many friends, of course, and managed to secure a number of loans amounting to several hundred dollars, and ran up quite a board bill besides. She went away as mysteriously as she came, and the farmers, though blinded for the moment by the disappearance of her ... brilliancy, have declared the best thing they can do is to do their fall ploughing as usual, so as to be ready to put the crops in in the spring.

Yesterday's Shooting Affair.

A few minutes after eight o'clock yesterday morning Russell Dewitt entered the store of Thomas McCann on Main street, and inquired for Martin Russell, who is employed there. In a short time he was followed by John Russell, who upon seeing him drew a revolver. James McCann who was in the store at the time stepped towards Russell and seized him by the arm to prevent his firing, but Russell pointed his revolver between McCann's arm and side and pulled the trigger. Dewitt was directly behind McCann and the bullet entered his left side. He then ran quickly towards the door, but did not escape before Russell had again fired at him, the bullet taking effect in his right side. Dewitt went into the next establishment where he remained until he was taken to his boarding place in Brewer, where he was attended by physicians, who found that the injuries were but flesh wounds, and not dangerous.

Russell after doing the shooting walked from the store down Main street and gave himself up to Officer Dougherty who had heard of the shooting and was on his way to the spot. Russell and his family and Dewitt formerly resided in Littleton in the northern part of the State, but since June the Russells have lived in this city, where they were followed by Dewitt. Russell says that he had been informed that Dewitt was armed and meant him bodily harm when they met, and a revolver was found upon Dewitt. Russell will probably be arraigned in the Municipal Court to-day. Jealousy was the cause of the shooting.

Next Saturday night "A Social Session" will be the attraction at the Opera House. The excellent Hussar Band, a fac-simile of the Imperial Russian Band, is with the company, and will furnish the best of music which is a good entertainment in itself. The New London Telegraph says:

"A Social Session" at the Opera House last evening drew the largest house of the season, every seat being occupied, and that counts for a great deal. INTERESTING CELEBRATION

Of the Silver Jubilee at St. Mary's Church.

The celebration of the Silver Jubilee, which marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the priesthood of Rev. Father M. C. O'Brien, of St. Mary's church, occurred yesterday at that church and the ceremony was a very interesting and impressive one. Not only was the event a celebration of the jubilee but also of the freeing of the church from debt, an event upon which Rev. Father O'Brien and the society are to be congratulated.

The following were the visiting clergy present: Rt. Rev. James A. Healey, D. D., bishop of Portland, Rt. Rev. D. M. Bradley, D. D. bishop of Manchester, preacher; Monsignor Thomas Griffin, D. D., Worcester, Mass., Rev. D. O'Callaghan, South Boston, deacon of mass, Rev. B. F. McGrath, Somerville, Mass., subdeacon of mass, Very Rev. John E. Barry, V. G., Concord, N. H., assistant priest to Bishop Deacons of Honor, Rev. Edward McSweeney, Bangor, Rev. T. H. Wallace, Lewiston. Master of Ceremonies, Rev. T. P. Linehan, Biddeford, Assistant Master of Ceremonies, Rev. T. M. Harley. Revs. D. W. Murphy, Dover, N. H., E. McCullagh, Portsmouth, N. H., M. C. McDonough, rector Portland Cathedral, J. F. Gorman, Brunswick, John O'Brien, Bath, J. McCarthy, Gardiner, Charles W. Doherty, Augusta, R. W. Phelan, Rockland, M. Charland, Waterville, Rev. Fr. ..., Skowhegan, P. J. Garrity, Winterport, T. F. Butler, Ellsworth, McCauley, M. T. Walsh, Calais, James O'Brien, Winn, John F. Nelligan, Old Town, F. X. Trudel, Old Town, E. ..., Orono, M. J. O'Brien, Bangor, John T. ..., Cambridge, Mass., Rev. Fr. McDermott.

The following ushers officiated at the church: Dr. Daniel McCann, T. W. Griffin, Jos. T. ..., P. O. Perry, J. F. ..., John Anderson, J. Jameson, Timothy ....

The service began at 9 a. m. with the celebration of masses, conducted by several priests. At the service at 9.30 there was a large attendance. The church was very handsomely decorated for the occasion with festoons of red, white and blue bunting, flowers, potted plants and evergreen, the arrangement being very attractive. The entrance of the bishop and priests at ten o'clock was an impressive sight.

At the commencement of the service the ... was gone through with, and the responses by the choir, assisted by Miss Flaherty of St. Dominic's church, Portland, and Mr. W. E. ..., tenor of St. John's Catholic church, were finely rendered. Bishop Bradley then delivered the sermon taking for his text: "And the King rejoiced with great joy, and all the people rejoiced, and they said, 'This is the day we have looked for, and we have found it.'"

He spoke of the clergy having come from away to share in the joy of their brother upon the occasion which had been so pleasantly looked forward to, the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the priesthood of the pastor. Every new kingdom is established either by conquest or by purchase. The kingdom of Jesus Christ was purchased by his own precious blood. The peculiarity of the purchase is that in Christ's purchase there is no exchange as in trade. Each individual soul holds in his own hands the power of his own redemption. In order that he may have companions on ... every high priest must be taken from among men and it is their duty to teach us to act aright. It is necessary that he be set apart by divine ordination in order that he may receive religious distinction. It is the duty of the priest to speak the law of the kingdom of the Lord and to enforce this law. A representative of Jesus Christ has other office than that of executive. He must go after lost sheep and call them back to the fold, and have his neighbors rejoice with him. Bishop Bradley concluded by saying that they had come to honor one who had exercised this priesthood for a quarter of a century, and prayed that he might be guided in the future as he had been in the past.

The following was the musical programme rendered by the choir, Mr. F. C. Jones presiding at the organ:

1. Mass in E flat ... Abbe Lambillotte
2. Hymn (trio) ... La Hache. Veni Creator Spiritus.
3. Offertorium (quartette) ... Abbe Lambillotte. Quid Retribuam?
4. Communion (bass solo) ... Abbe Lambillotte. Suscipe, Domine.

At noon the clergy met in the basement of the church, where a banquet was splendidly served by Caterer Douse. Bishop Healey acted as toast master and the responses to the toasts were of a very interesting character. It was a very enjoyable event.

In the afternoon at half past three a general gathering of the parishioners was held in the church. The visiting clergy were seated within the altar railing. After the removal of the Blessed Sacrament, the following presentation address was made by Mr. T. J. Hurley:

REV. AND DEAR FATHER O'BRIEN:

With deep and sincere affection, we, your devoted parishioners, assemble to-day to offer to you our greetings on this the twenty-fifth anniversary of your ordination to the priesthood. The years that have so swiftly passed since you have been amongst us have been fraught with many changes in St. Mary's parish, and we cannot refrain from expressing to you our gratitude for the untiring devotion you have shown and the courage with which you have imbued us in bringing to a successful termination the noble work begun by your worthy predecessor our beloved Father Murphy, and to-day with heartfelt thanks we unite in offering with you to Almighty God, our church, freed from the financial burden which it has borne so long.

We feel deeply our inability to say how much you have endeared yourself to us by the solicitude you have shown in our spiritual welfare, by the cheerfulness with which you have responded to our many demands for advice and consolation, and above all, the interest you have manifested in the future welfare of our boys, as evinced in the parochial school; and in this last undertaking rest assured Dear Reverend Father you have our individual and enthusiastic support, and upon all your work we beg the blessings of Almighty God may attend it and crown your efforts. [illegible]

At the conclusion of the address Mr. Hurley presented Rev. Father O'Brien with a purse of gold ... in a ... basket, with twenty-five silver dollars on the surface to represent the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination. Rev. Father O'Brien made a very feeling response as he received the gift, which is one of the many marks of appreciation from his parishioners.

In the evening the vesper and benediction service was held in the church, and there was a large attendance. The following was the programme:

HARP AND SONG RECITAL.

An Enjoyable Evening of Music at City Hall.

The harp and song recital given last evening at City Hall was a musical event which proved very enjoyable to the members of the good sized audience present, who were again glad to hear Miss Shaw and the others who so ably assisted her. The hearty applause which followed the selections, was an evidence that the delicious music made a deep impression. The following was the programme:

PROGRAMME.

1. Grand Fantasie ... Alvars. Miss Shaw.
2. a. In May ... Franz; b. Widmung ... Schumann. Miss Clarke.
3. a. Study ... Bochsa; b. Sympathy ... Aptommas. Miss Shaw.
4. Legende and Mazurka ... [illegible]
5. Ash Grove ... Thomas
6. Angel's Serenade ... Braga
7. [illegible]

Miss Shaw received a warm welcome from the audience, among which were many personal friends, and her playing was of that high order which justifies such a reception, ... The selections were all splendidly rendered, and the "Grand Fantasie" was one of the particularly well given numbers. In response to an encore she gave one of her own compositions, a dainty "Romance." Other encores showed the appreciation of the hearers. Miss Shaw brings a clear, sweet tone from the harp and her melodious ... were a true evidence of her artistic ability and training. Miss Shaw was the recipient of some beautiful flowers.

Miss Clarke possesses a pure, strong, melodious soprano voice which she uses with a method and intelligence which give excellent results. She was suffering from a cold last evening, but notwithstanding greatly pleased her hearers by her songs which were rendered with expression and close harmony. The encores which she received demonstrated the estimation in which the audience hold her songs. Miss Clarke also was presented with a handsome bouquet.

The "Angel's Serenade" by Miss Clark, with flute obligato by Mr. S. H. ..., and harp accompaniment by Miss Shaw, was a most enjoyable number and finely rendered.

A WEAKNESS SOMEWHERE.

The investigation showed that this terribly fatal accident was caused by the weakened and overstrained condition of a single vital strand of the otherwise strong bridge.

So it is often in the human system. How many people there are who have a weakness somewhere. They appear to be in fair health, but they have no appetite, a stomach trouble, a kidney or liver disease, a weakness in the back, a nervousness or trembling, strange sensations, depression of the mind, a sense of anxiety, accompanied by a weak, tired or languid feeling. Others become sleepless and wake more tired mornings than when they retired, their head feels dull and heavy, they have little or no appetite for breakfast and their old time energy and ambition appear to have deserted them. Thousands are troubled by bad gas, flesh gas in the stomach or constipation, accompanied by a nervous and irritable condition.

These are of apparently slight weaknesses. A person may have at first only one or two of these symptoms but they are to the body what the weakened strand is to the bridge, and any over strain of the brain nerves or physical system may precipitate the unfortunate person into utter ruin, nervous or physical prostration and exhaustion.

It behooves all therefore, when they detect even the slightest weakness in the system to procure immediately that great strengthener and invigorator Dr Greene's Nervura. Nothing will so quickly and surely restore the tired and overworked brain, and strengthen and invigorate the weak, worn out and shattered nerves. No other remedy in the world so rapidly regulates the system and restores the vital strength, both nervous and physical, and hundreds of thousands of people whose weaknesses of the system were detected, have by the timely use of this wonderful remedy, Dr Greene's Nervura, warded off serious disease and been restored to sound and vigorous health.

It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and may be obtained at any druggists for $1 per bottle.

Saver of Life and Health.

I was broken down with nervous and physical prostration before using Dr Greene's Nervura and life was a burden. Now life is a joy and sleep is a luxury compared to it before taking Nervura. I relish my food and my nervousness has left me, so has the numbness. I wish I could shout loud enough so that all the world could hear, and tell them the good Dr. Greene's Nervura has done me. It has made me from a weak, trembling, nervous, irritable man to one who feels he is on the highway to long years of health and happiness through Dr Greene's Nervura and the blessing of God.

Dr Greene of 34 Temple Place, Boston, Mass., the discoverer, is the famous specialist in the cure of nervous and chronic diseases. The doctor has devoted special attention to the treatment of all forms of chronic diseases through letter correspondence, and will give by mail his opinion and advice in any case free of charge. The particulars of this system render a complete cure almost assured as his success in treatment by correspondence is wonderful and unequalled. Send for symptom blank to fill out and write him about your case. sept6 eod&taw4t

Dr. J. F. TOWNSEND of Boston Mass, inventor of Oxygenated Air, also the inhalation system in this country; also inventor of many Medical Remedies and Surgical Instruments, having devoted over twenty five years to the treatment and cure of chronic diseases of every description with marked success, has established such perfect confidence in his own ability and remedies, that he is perfectly willing to treat and cure the sick without receiving a dollar for professional services until a cure is established.

If you are sick or ailing from any cause, do not fail to see Dr. Townsend.

Such is the peculiar mechanism of the human system that if of an become deranged, debilitated and diseased from slight causes—for instance it minds of eye glasses, or neglect to procure them when needed—it may derange the entire system. By any strain upon the eyes directly affects the nervous system. Having made Doctor ... in all its varied forms a long and deep study, and having by my improved system cured diseases and restored sight in very many cases, I now make this feature a specialty. DYING WITH HUMORS

Which Three Doctors Could not Cure Cured in Four Weeks by Cuticura Remedies.

I wrote you about four years ago of the wonderful cure I made with your Cuticura Remedies of a bad humor on my face which twelve doctors failed to understand or cure. Three years ago last fall my son went to Sacramento, Cal., and after two or three months he broke out with a humor on his stomach and back suffering very much. He employed three different doctors and at last they told him to go back to Maine, as his disease was caused by change of climate and he could not live in California. He wrote me that he was coming home, for he was dying with a humor that the doctors could not cure. I wrote him to get some Cuticura Remedies and take according to directions, and bathe freely with the Cuticura Soap, and if four weeks after he got my letter he wrote me he was entirely cured. He came home a few weeks ago on a visit, and is at home now. His health is good. I have recommended these remedies to a great many people with bad cases that would not yield to doctors' medicines, and in no case have I known them to fail to make a cure. If you wish to refer any one to me, I will answer with pleasure. HARRISON STEVENS, East Jackson, Me.

Cuticura Resolvent

The new Blood and Skin Purifier and greatest of Humor Remedies, internally (to cleanse the blood of all impurities and poisonous elements, and thus remove the cause), and Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, and Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier, externally (to clear the skin and scalp, and restore the hair), speedily and permanently cure every species of itching, burning, scaly, crusted, pimply, scrofulous, and hereditary diseases and humors, infancy to age, from pimples to scrofula, when the best physicians and all other remedies fail. This is strong language, but every word of it is true. Cuticura Remedies are the greatest skin cures, blood purifiers, and humor remedies of modern times.

CHAPTER XIII.

It was Aurelia!

The engine and trucks stopped, the men shouldered their tools and tumbled out and we followed them. A few hundred paces in front of us was a railway bridge, over which a road passed, and under which the rail went at a sharp curve. The snow had drifted heavily against the bridge with its hug. earth embankment, making manifest at a glance the cause of the disaster.

The bridge was crowded with human figures, and on the line below men were working in the drift amid piles of debris and splintered wood. The wrecked train had all been slightly heaped in snow; the engine alone, barely cold, lying black and grim, like some mighty giant, formidable in death. A sheet of glass ice near it showed how the boiler had burst. Some of the hindermost carriages were still standing or had fallen comparatively uninjured, but others seemed to have leaped upon their fellows and plowed right through them into the drift. It was well that it began to snow as we reached the spot. There were traces of dismal smears on the white ground which it would be seemly to hide.

Our friend in black went forward and asked a few questions of the man in charge and presently returned.

"The remainder of the passengers are at the farm," he said, pointing to a house at a little distance and without further delay we began to scramble up the steep embankment and clamber over the stone wall of the bridge into the road. My mind was full of other things, but I remember still the number of people assembled on the bridge, and how a man was standing up in his donkey cart to view the scene.

It was Saturday, and there were quantities of village school boys sitting astride on the low wall, or perched on adjacent hurdles, evidently enjoying the spectacle, jostling, bawling, eating oranges and throwing the peel at the engine. Some older people touched their hats sympathetically, and one went and opened a gate for us into a field through which many feet seemed to have come and gone, but for the greater number the event was evidently regarded as an interesting variation in the dull routine of everyday life and to the school boys it was an undoubted treat.

Ralph and Charles walked on in front following the track across the field. It was not particularly heavy walking after what we had had earlier in the day, but Ralph stumbled perpetually and presently Charles drew his arm through his own and the two went on together, the police inspector following with me.

In a few minutes we reached the farm and entered the farmyard, which was the nearest way to the house. A little knot of calves intrenched on a mound of straw in the center of the yard lowered their heads and looked askance at us as we came in and a party of ducks retreated hastily from our path with a chorus of exclamations, while a thin colly dog burst out of a barrel at the back door and made a series of gymnastics at the end of a chain barking hoarsely, as if he had not spared himself of late.

An elderly woman with red arms met us at the door, and on a whisper from the police inspector first shook her head, and then, in answer to a further whisper, nodded at another door, and a voice calling her from within, hastily disappeared.

The inspector opened the door she had indicated and went in, I with him. Charles, who had grown very grave, hung back with Ralph, who seemed too much dazed to notice anything in heaven above or the earth beneath. The door opened into an outhouse, roughly paved with round stones, where barrels, staves and divers lumber had been put away.

There was straw in the further end of it, out of which a yellow cat raised two gleaming eyes, and then flew up a ladder against the wall and disappeared among the rafters. In the middle of the floor, lying a little apart, were three figures with sheets over them. Instinctively we felt that we were in the presence of death. I looked back at Charles and Ralph, who were still standing outside in the falling snow. Charles was bareheaded, but Ralph was looking absently in front of him, seeming conscious of nothing. The inspector made me a sign. He had raised one of the sheets, and now withdrew it altogether. My heart seemed to stand still.

It was Aurelia! Aurelia changed in the last great change of all, but still Aurelia. The fixed artificial color in the cheek consorted ill with the bloodless pallor of the rest of the face, which was set in a look of surprise and terror. She was altered beyond what should have been. She looked several years older, but it was still Aurelia. Those little gloved hands, tightly clinched were the same which she had held to the library fire as we talked the day before, even the dress was the same. Alas! she had been in too great a hurry to change it before she left, or her thin shoes. Poor little Aurelia!

And then—I don't know how it was, but in another instant Ralph was kneeling by her, bending over her, taking the stiffened hands in his trembling clasp, imploring the deaf ears to hear him, calling wildly to the pale lips to speak to him which had done with human speech. I could not bear it, and I turned away and looked out through the open door at the snow falling. The inspector came and stood beside me. In the silence which followed we could hear Charles speaking gently from time to time, and when at last we both turned toward them again Ralph had flung himself down on an old bench at the further end of the outhouse, with his back turned toward us, his arms resting on a barrel and his head bowed down upon them. He neither spoke nor moved.

Charles left him and came toward us, and he and the inspector spoke apart for a moment, and then the latter dropped on his knees beside the dead woman and, after looking carefully at a dark stain on one of the wrists, turned back the sleeve. Crushed deep into the round, white arm gleamed something bright. It was an emerald bracelet which we both knew. ... at Ralph, but he had not moved, and he drew me beside him, so as to interpose our two figures between him and the inspector. The latter quickly loosened ... the sleeve of the ...

He gazed long and earnestly at the dead face, and then to my horror he suddenly unfastened the little hat. I made an involuntary movement, as if to stop him, but Charles laid an iron grip upon me and motioned to me to be still. The stealthy hand quietly pushed back the fair curls upon the forehead, and in another moment they fell still further back, showing a few short locks of dark hair beneath them, which so completely altered the dead face that I could hardly recognize it as belonging to the same person. The inspector raised his head and looked significantly at Charles.

Then he quietly drew forward the yellow hair over the forehead again, replaced the hat and rose to his feet. Charles and I glanced apprehensively at Ralph, but he had not stirred. As we looked a hurried step came across the yard, a hand raised the latch of the door and some one entered abruptly. It was Carr. For one moment he stood in the doorway, for one moment his eyes rested horror struck on the dead woman, then darted at us, from us to the inspector, who was coolly watching him, and—he was gone! gone as suddenly as he had come, gone swiftly out again into the falling snow, followed by the wild barking of the dog.

Charles, who had had his back to the door, turned in time to see him, and he made a rush for the door but the inspector flung himself in his way and held him forcibly.

"Let me go!, Let me get at him!" panted Charles, struggling furiously.

"I shall do no such thing sir. It can do no good and might do harm. He is armed, and you are no, and he would not be overscrupulous if he were pushed. Besides, what can you accuse him of? Intent to rob? For he did not do it. If you have lost anything remember you have found it again. If you caught him a hundred times you have no hold on him. I know him of old."

"You?"

"Yes, I have known him by sight long enough. He is not a new hand by any means—nor she either, as to that, poor thing."

"But what on earth brought him here?"

"He was waiting for news of her in London most likely, and he knew she would have the jewels on her and came down when he got wind of the accident."

"Knew she would have the jewels! Then do you mean to say there was collusion between the two?"

The inspector glanced furtively at Ralph, but he had never stirred or raised his head since he had laid it down in his clinched hands.

"They are both well known to the police," he said at last, "and I think it probable there was collusion between them, considering they were man and wife."

A WOMAN'S [illegible]

These are all apparently slight weaknesses. A person may have at first only one or two of these symptoms, but they are to the body what the weakened strand is to the bridge and may overstrain of the brain, nerves or physical system may precipitate the unfortunate person into utter mental, nervous or physical prostration and exhaustion.

It behooves all, therefore, when they detect even the slightest weakness in the system to procure immediately that great strengthener and invigorator Dr Greene's Nervura. Nothing will so quickly and surely restore the tired and overworked brain and strengthen and invigorate the weak, worn out and shattered nerves. No other remedy in the world so rapidly regulates the system and restores the vital strength, both nervous and physical, and hundreds of thousands of people, when weaknesses of the system were detected, have by the timely use of this wonderful remedy, Dr Greene's Nervura, warded off serious disease and been restored to sound and vigorous health.

It is purely vegetable and perfectly harmless, and can be obtained at any druggists for $1 per bottle.

Saver of Life and Health.

I was broken down with nervous and physical prostration before using Dr Greene's Nervura and life was a burden. Now life is a joy and sleep is a luxury compared to it before taking Nervura. I relish my food and my nervousness has left me, has the numbness. I wish I could shout loud enough so that all the world could hear, and tell them the good Dr Greene's Nervura has done me. It has made me from a weak, trembling, nervous, irritable man to one who feels he is on the highway to long years of health and happiness through Dr Greene's Nervura and the blessing of God.

CHAPTER III.

It was a wreck!

The engine and trucks stopped, the men shouldered their tools and tumbled out and we followed them. A few hundred paces in front of us was a railway bridge, over which a road passed, and under which the rail went at a sharp curve. The snow had drifted heavily against the bridge with its high earth embankment, making manifest at a glance the cause of the disaster.

The bridge was crowded with human figures, and on the line below men were working in the drift amid piles of debris and splintered wood. The wrecked train had all been lightly draped in snow, the engine alone, barely cold, lying black and grim like some mighty giant, formidable in death. A sheet of glassy ice that it showed how the boiler had burst. Some of the hindermost carriages were still standing or had fallen comparatively uninjured, but others seemed to have leaped upon their fellows and plowed right through them into the drift. It was well that it began to snow as we reached the spot. There were traces of dismal sights on the white ground which it would be seemly to hide.

Our friend in black went forward and asked a few questions of the man in charge and presently returned.

The remainder of the passengers are at the farm, he said, pointing to a house at a little distance, and without further delay we began to scramble up the steep embankment and clamber over the stone wall of the bridge into the road. My mind was full of other things, but I remember still the number of people assembled on the bridge, and how a man was standing upon his donkey cart to view the scene.

It was Saturday, and there were quantities of village school boys sitting astride on the low wall or perched on adjacent hurdles evidently enjoying the spectacle, jostling, howling, eating oranges and throwing the peel at the engine. Some older people touched their hats sympathetically, and one went and opened a gate for us into a field through which many feet seemed to have come and gone, but for the greater number the event was evidently regarded as an interesting variation in the dull routine of everyday life, and to the school boys it was an undoubted treat.

Ralph and Charles walked on in front following the track across the field. It was not particularly heavy walking after what we had had earlier in the day, but Ralph stumbled perpetually and presently Charles drew his arm through his own and the two went on together, the police inspector following with me.

[illegible]

It was Aunt Annie [illegible]

[illegible]

Charles left him and came toward us, and he and the inspector spoke apart for a moment, and then the latter stooped on his knees beside the dead woman, and, after looking carefully at a dark stain on one of the wrists, turned back the sleeve. Crushed deep into the wound, white arm, gleamed something bright. It was an unusual bracelet which we both knew. Charles cast a hasty glance at Ralph, but he had not moved, and he drew me beside him so as to interpose our two figures between him and the inspection. The latter quietly turned down the sleeve and [illegible].

"I knew she would have them on her, if she had them at all," he said in a low voice. "We need look no further at present. Not one will be missing. They are all there."

As quiet long out currently at the [illegible]

[illegible]

Then he quickly drew forward the [illegible] hair over the forehead again, [illegible] and the hat and [illegible] [illegible] but he had not stirred. He [illegible] behind a barred [illegible] across the [illegible] [illegible] in the door [illegible] For one moment he stood in the doorway, for one moment his eyes rested [illegible] on the dead woman, then darted at us from us to the inspector, who was coolly watching him, and who was gone—gone as suddenly as he had come, gone swiftly out again into the falling snow, followed by the wild bark [illegible] of the dog.

Charles, who had had his back to the door, turned in time to see him, and he made a rush for the door, but the inspector flung himself in his way and held him forcibly.

"Let me go! Let me get at him!" panted Charles, struggling fiercely.

"I shall do no such thing, sir. I can do no good and might do harm. He is armed, and you are not, and he would not be overscrupulous if he were pushed. Besides, what can you accuse him of? I want to spoil. For he did not do it. If you have lost anything, remember you have found it again. If you caught him a hundred times you have no hold on him. I know him of old."

"You?"

"Yes. I have known him by sight long enough. He is not a new hand, by any means—nor the other, as to that poor thing!"

"But what on earth brought him here?"

"He was waiting for news of her in London most likely, and he knew she would have the jewels on her and came down when he got wind of the accident."

"Knew she would have the jewels! You do you mean to say there was collusion between the two?"

The inspector glanced furtively at Ralph, but he had never stirred or raised his head since he had laid it down in his clinched hands.

"They are both well known to the police," he said at last, "and I think it probable there was collusion between them, considering they were man and wife."
